

FOUR WINDS NATURE INSTITUTE

Community-based Natural Science Education and Research

Hello and warm wishes to you! The Four Winds Nature Institute engages hundreds of adult volunteers to teach natural science each month to children in communities around the region. This year more than 17,000 youngsters enjoy this opportunity to learn about the natural world through first-hand experiences, right in their own neighborhoods and schoolyards.

We would like very much to be able to use some images – both photos and video – of children when we are telling people about our programs – a picture is worth a thousand words, and all that! And we're hoping you can help us. We'd like to have your permission to include images of your child engaged in science learning and outdoor exploration in our educational materials, such as brochures, our website, social media, and presentations. We would not publish your child's name or location.

Below is a permission slip for you to fill out, if you and your child are willing to be featured in Four Winds's materials. Thank you for considering our request!

Yours sincerely,
Lisa Purcell
